Reasons for the Analysis and Assessment of Living Space

A) Private and Professional Quality of Life

Wellbeing – You are looking for a way to improve your wellbeing, e.g. due to inner concern, lack of vitality, sleeplessness, desire for children, etc.

Career Aspects – You see obstacles constantly in the way of your career development.

Interpersonal Aspects – You find yourself again and again in difficult friendships, partnerships or work relationships.

Lack of Energy in Everyday Life – You feel like you are swimming against the current, instead of with it, in order to reach your goals.

B) Change of Living Space / Building a House

Analysis of a current Living Space – You have just moved into a new house or apartment, or in the place where you have lived for many years exceptional difficulties occur in the household, e.g. there is more disarray, physical accidents or even physical ailments.

Analysis of a future Living Space – You want to purchase or are considering changing apartment. In both cases it is advisable to ensure that within your four walls Feng Shui principles were taken into consideration which strengthen you and enrich your family's life quality.

Site Assessment – You are looking for a site for you and your family in order to build a home for yourselves. The optimal Feng Shui conditions can be found when the location and division of the site as well as the orientation of the house can be matched with the energy needs of the inhabitants.

Architectural Planning / House Construction – You want to be sure that the energy Qi supports all family members and inhabitants of the house. Then a cooperation between the architect, you and a traditional trained Feng Shui consultant is strongly advisable.

If one or more of the above mentioned aspects applies to your life situation, a Feng Shui analysis of your living area is advisable, as an energetic analysis on the basis of metaphysical formulae can shed light on what is preventing you from reaching a harmonized quality of life.

Result of the consultation
