

Graduate Feng Shui Practitioner's Course in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

September 18, 2005

Day 8 - Public Bank Audit & Graduation Dinner

Day 8, the final day started off with the introduction of another method of day selection. After lunch the class walked to the Public Bank building close to the Mandarin Oriental Hotel and the Twin Towers. Public Bank is one of the most successful banks in Malaysia; posting excellent results every year and winning numerous business awards for excellence in the banking sector. This was a case study that grabbed everyone's attention as the students had the rare opportunity to study an actual case that was consulted by Grandmaster Yap Cheng Hai personally.

The Public Bank called Grandmaster Yap Cheng Hai after they discovered that during construction phase of the Twin Towers, right opposite to the bank, the turnover of the bank obviously decreased.

After changing the entrance area and implementing some measures to provide protection to the bright hall in front of the entrance area, the scenario turned to the opposite. Today the bank is even more successful than before.

Later in the evening during the graduation dinner, everyone dressed in their graduation gowns. Entertainment was provided by a Chinese classical band playing a mixture of classical and contemporary pieces. A surprise for us was the video presentation of the highlights of the entire 8 days condensed into 14 minutes.

The evening ended with the handing out of the certificates followed by the group photo.

Everyone had mixed feeling as the dinner came to an end – happy because we had completed the tough Graduate Practitioners Course and sad at the same time as we would have to say goodbye to international new friends and colleagues.

